"Called to His Abode"

They are not in gentle sleep,
But guardians of our keep
Like angels from the Heaven above
Look down upon us in greater love.

Death is but the opening of a door,
To enter is to progress more.
Those we loved, and loved yet more;
Now they know, the total score.

And if we love them even more
Why mourn them passing through the door?
We miss their presence - sorrow's
load;
But, ah my friend, we must release
Those whom God has called to His Abode.
